

Permission to display art work in B.C. Art Teachers' Association publications (BCATA print publications and/or website)

The British Columbia Art Teachers' Association is an organization which promotes art education in BC. It provides information such as unit ideas, current issues in art education, and professional development opportunities through its printed publications, website and conferences.

The BCATA would like permission to display your child's work:

- on its website (<http://bcata.ca>)
- on the Visually Speaking online magazine
- in its professional journal

The purpose is to showcase student work across the province, and to provide unit ideas for teachers. The display will include the school name, your child's grade and first name only for privacy reasons.

If there are any questions concerning the posting of the art work, please contact your school art teacher. If you and your child give permission to post the work in the specified publication, please fill out the information below and sign at the bottom.

Thank you.
