I bought this at the PSA Super Conference in October 2017. It is an adorable book. At the start of the book, two characters have just been formed from clay. The story begins when the artist, who created the two clay characters, leaves for the night. It's an interesting, playful and funny story that follows the two characters through their adventures of reforming themselves and, at the same time, forming a friendship. This would be a great story to introduce a unit involving clay, form, or claymation and could easily be enjoyed by children from Kindergarten to Grade Seven and beyond.
